

Paulatuk Aerial and Sample Survey - August to October 2005

Hamlet of Paulatuk, Northwest Territories on the shores of Darnley Bay on the Arctic Coast.

Fugro Airborne Surveys Cessna Caravan survey aircraft on the tarmac at Paulatuk.

Canadian Helicopters 206B aircraft used to transport till sampling crew.

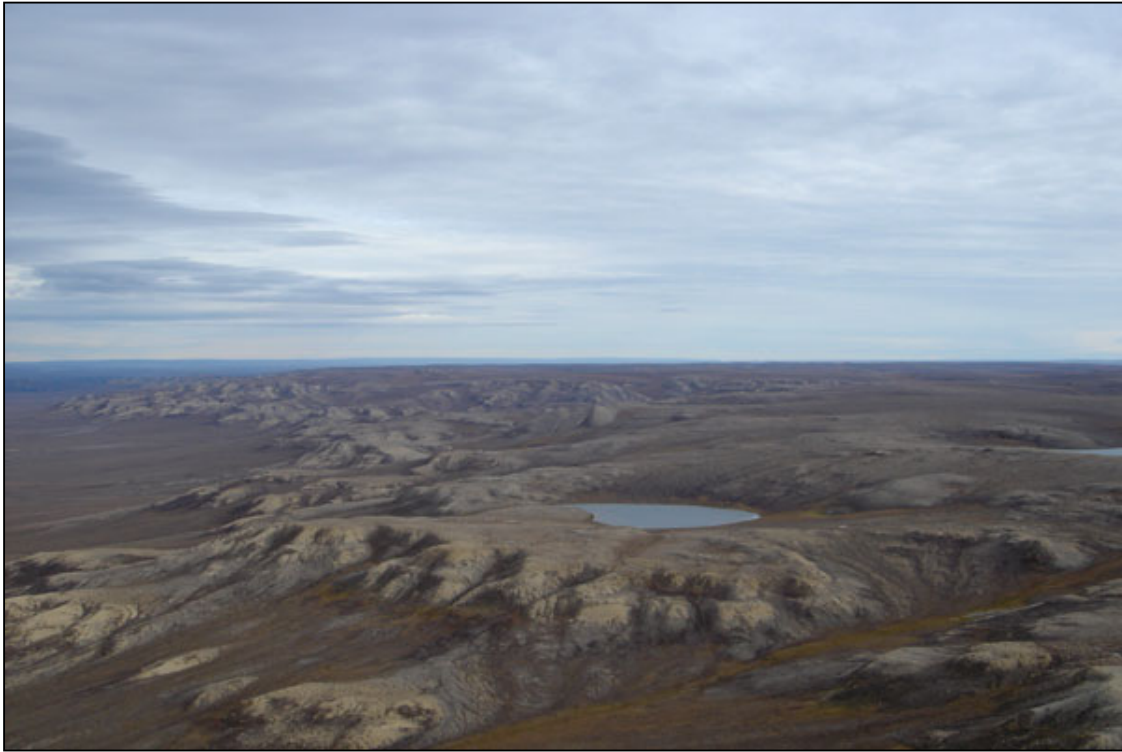

Tim Sandberg, Taiga Consultants Senior Geologist taking a till sample on Parry Peninsula.

Till samples in 5 gallon pails with numbered security tags.

Loading till samples onto Aklak Airways DC3 for shipment to Inuvik and then by ground transport south for processing.

Smoking Hills area west of Paulatuk, spontaneously combusting coal seams in poorly consolidated Cretaceous sandstones and mudstones.

Smoking Hills area west of Paulatuk, spontaneously combusting coal seams in poorly consolidated Cretaceous sandstones and mudstones.

© 2006 Diadem Resources Ltd.